

An International view – And then there were 13.

Dear Mr McKie,

Another eleventh hour surprise by someone who has chosen her timing to coincide with recent events.

It is interesting that her position is one who now disclaims being part of a group denouncing the SCRO but as an expert she is not saying her position in relation to the erroneous identification which we can now assume is aligned with SCRO.

At any court her credibility will be severely damaged if the initial examination of her expertise is the ability to identify. After that any denials about being part of the original group are really questionable. She has made herself a perfect target for defense lawyers based on her lack of ability to decide.

I wonder how she sleeps at night knowing the sort of stress her media release has generated. In time her correction will come when the real truth has been judged.

Kind regards.

Expert Australia