

HENRY FAULDS

Just a brief note to ask for assistance. As you will be aware Dr Henry Faulds lived for his final years in Wolstanton, Staffordshire and is buried in St Margaret's Church yard there. The local Historical Society in that area wish to mark the home of Dr Henry Faulds with a blue plaque similar to that which you will find outside the homes of other famous people in England. To progress this matter they are looking for information about his home. I have some pictures which I will forward in due course, but I am sure that there are several people in that area who are quite knowledgeable about HF and his time in Staffs and will have relevant information. If so I would appreciate it if you could make direct contact with:

Jim Worgan (Chair), 60 Florence Street, Newcastle-Under-Lyme, North Staffordshire ST5 2BJ Tel No: 01782-616378. The Society has a meeting this Friday evening and it would be great if someone made contact with Jim before this.

It would be fitting if Dr Henry Faulds was to have further acknowledgement for his role as one of the early pioneers of fingerprints. Thank you. If anyone is able to make contact I would value a brief reply just to confirm the situation. Thanks.
